In this letter, we have a large number of good news and few bad news. First, the bad news: 1. There are some pending issues with our servers. Since we've have doubled in size, our previous servers have become overloaded. We've have doubled in size since last July. We were concerned that things wouldn't be on point when it came to server capacity but have been pleasantly surprised by how well our servers have performed so far. We have been working on getting new servers to replace the ones that are running low on resources. We've already migrated most of our users to a new set of servers so your files will still be available even after these servers go down. There is a chance that there will be some issues in the next few days as we work through the migration. We will give an update when this happens. 2. Some of our file type restrictions have been removed. These include files from DRM sites and files with certain file extensions. We wanted to allow Abelhas Box to support as many file types as possible. We have found that allowing other file types reduces Abelhas Box's efficiency in syncing your files. This improvement means that Abelhas Box can work with many more file types than before. 3. We're adding features that you requested. We've heard a lot of requests for various features. We're adding new features to the application now. There are a few new features that haven't been announced yet. Some of the features are listed below: ••• We're making these changes to give you the best application that we can. We'll be giving the general public the opportunity to test the changes we make. This will help us to identify and correct issues before they affect the applications' overall performance.
