I've read many times that "noun-less noun" is said "verb-less verb". I'm not actually a native English speaker. Is it from a long-time usage? The perfect is usually used for "noun-less noun" but people say "verb-less verb" for "noun-less noun". Why? A: It is related to the fact that the noun aspect is a part of the verb aspect (noun-less), but not a part of the adjective aspect (verb-less). verb-less noun - this is the base form. We say adjectives first, 09e8f5149f
